

New Rogart Cemetery
Our code RO-A

Note: this graveyard is still in use.

The new cemetery at Rogart lies in the valley opposite the old Kirk of St Callan. It is a very pretty spot and a very well kept cemetery. These are the oldest stones there.

Note – we have chosen not to show some stones which record deaths during the last 50 or so years. Some of these stones belong to families who still live in Rogart

This is a work in progress and new inscriptions may be added later this year
Christine Stokes photographed and transcribed this cemetery.
She has a considerable amount of genealogical information on the people of Rogart.

* ROGART - Some time ago several meetings of the ratepayers were held to consider the condition of the burying ground, and the urgent necessity for its extension or the procuring of new ground.*

After certain steps had been taken with regard to it, the matter was allowed to fall into abeyance owing, principally, to the impossibility of finding, in a convenient situation, suitable ground for the purpose.

Now that a croft in close proximity to the present burying-ground, and suitable in every respect, has become vacant a short time ago, through the surviving tenant having given up her right thereto, the Parish Council has taken the matter seriously in hand and at their meeting on Monday Rev Mr Macdonald, after referring to the present burying-ground, which he characterised as inadequate for the requirements of the parish, as being in a highly unbecoming state, and as an extension was by no means feasible, moved that the requisite steps be taken for the procuring of a new burying-ground.

Rev M Mackintosh having seconded, it was unanimously agreed to approach the Duke of Sutherland, proprietor of the croft, with the object of getting immediate possession of it, so that there would be no further delay in the matter, the urgent necessity of the case calling for prompt action.

It was also stated that the present burying-ground would remain available for the burying of spouses and those related in the first degree to those interred in it. The following members of the Council were appointed a committee to carry out the arrangements: - Mr Alexander Murray, chairman of Council (convener); Rev Mr Macdonald, the Rev Mr Mackintosh and Messrs A S Innes and Mr Robert Matheson, with instructions to report to a special meeting tonight, after conferring with Mr D Maclean, factor for the landlord.
